Subject: Founder of National Writers Series to Visit Senior Center

Traverse City – The Senior Center Network will present a program featuring one of the National Writers Series' founders, Anne Stanton, on Tuesday, May 3, 3:30 p.m., at the Senior Center.

Anne and Doug Stanton and local attorney Grant Parsons co-founded the Writers Series of Traverse City, a non-profit organization dedicated to presenting great conversations with today's best authors. The organization believes such endeavors enrich the community through the power of storytelling.

Stanton will discuss how the National Writers Series, which brings in some of the finest authors in the country to the City Opera House throughout the year, was created. She also will talk about Front Street Writers, a creative writing program for area high school students to hone their skills, and preview some of the authors to be hosted by the Writer Series here this fall.

"This is a unique opportunity for participants to learn firsthand about a successful national organization and its popular programs," said Ericca Hovie, Senior Center Network Program Coordinator.

Advance registration is required for this free event. Call 231-922-4911 or send an e-mail to dmikowski@grandtraverse.org.
